

Code of Conduct

Students at Dania Academy

The purpose of Dania Academy's Code of Conduct is to define a general set of basic ethical values for students at Dania, both in internal and external relations. We expect our students to respect and adhere to these values.

Dania Academy's main objective is to offer high-quality professional higher education and to create a solid framework for an open and tolerant study environment, leaving room for a wide range of opinions and ideas. We treat each other respectfully and equally regardless of gender, race, ethnicity, religion, faith, ability, age, sexual orientation or gender identity.

Learning Environment at Dania

We expect that students at Dania Academy contribute to an open and motivating study and work environment that facilitates learning, well-being, and social relations. Together, students and the Academy must ensure that Dania achieves this goal as an institution. Through study and work environment surveys, interviews and dialogue with and between students and staff, Dania Academy creates and sustains a framework that supports this policy.

To ensure well-being and good relations, our students should care for each other and be mutually responsible in all social and professional relations – face to face and in groups large and small. Students and staff should treat each other with respect and a friendly attitude in all situations.

External relations

We expect our students to be open towards the surrounding world and act dynamically and professionally in any kind of cooperation. When students represent Dania in external relations, they must act as good ambassadors and do their best to maintain the positive image of the academy.
